

Seize the day!

When all around are hoping things will get 'back to normal', make time and space to invent a better future.

Dangerous times?

Can we trust the future? After years of growth and plenty, Western civilization is in danger of disintegrating. Economic turbulence, social unrest and environmental shocks make us wonder which organizations might thrive and which will just survive or even perish.

How are these pressures manifesting in your organization? Are you struggling to do ever more with less? Are people working harder just to stand still? Do attempts at a cure (cost-cutting, re-organising, downsizing, outsourcing, working harder) simply add to the problems? Are people experiencing stress and nearing burnout?

Danger threatens all. While some resist change, others thrive by making time and space for creative processes, innovation and inner growth. Don't wait, like a rabbit in the headlights, when you can set out your stall to change the outcome.

Change the game!

When circumstances change, the old game-plays are no longer effective. Smart people change the game. What if your leadership team were to become dynamic, responsive and hungry for change? Why not turn threat into opportunity by involving and engaging them in co-creation of a future you all desire?

"Success comes from focusing on the top team, how the members work together, the vision they share and how they drive the company forward. They have to be absolutely aligned."

Kevin Whiteman, Chairman,
Yorkshire Water & Kelda Group

Individual Excellence Award 2011

If not now, when?

Journey of discovery

Take your leadership team on a journey, which will unveil your way to future success.

Beginning with refining or re-defining your values, purpose and vision, we will help you determine strategies and take action to make it real. In an initial 48-hour, facilitated, off-site workshop, we invite your team to step out of “business as usual” and embark upon a transformational voyage. You will emerge with greater clarity, renewed energy, passion, and tangible next steps to build the future you desire.

The journey further unfolds as we challenge, encourage and support your leadership in an ongoing process of experiential learning and development. We work in practical and creative ways in dynamic group sessions and workshops, and through action-team and one-to-one coaching.

Who are we?

Our small diverse group of independent consultant/facilitators has extensive experience at senior level across all sectors, in organisations ranging from small enterprises to multi-nationals.

A space – between past and future

Our residential centre in the Yorkshire Dales National Park, has been carefully nurtured through 25 years of developmental leadership work. Set in secluded and unspoiled surroundings, its comfortable accommodation, excellent food and creative ambience provide an intentional bubble of calm - the ideal place to begin the next phase of your organisation’s evolution.

Pause a moment

Accept our offer of a half-hour consultation, without charge or obligation. Explore how your future challenges can be met with creativity, vigour and energy, in a way that can change your game and transform your fortunes. Is this the way for you? Let’s find out.
